

Shefali Sunderan Harsha is a freelancer who writes for magazines, consults on e-learning projects, and provides editorial expertise for a living. She has been published on Burrp.com, Indusladies.com, and Chillibreeze.in. She is a preferred writer at Chillibreeze, a content solutions company, and has worked on several writing assignments related to art and architecture, education, technology, lifestyle, relationships, beauty, and fashion.

Along with being a student of the Writers Bureau creative writing course, Shefali invents recipes that either require minimal time or have chocolate in them, tidies up desks, lives the life of a grammar Nazi, reads, shops for shoes, visits spas, and travels. She wishes her life was as interesting as her imagination, and blogs about it at <http://discordantthoughts.wordpress.com>.